CITIES RANKED BY DEATHS

The county's 88 cities, ranked by the average number of traffic deaths a year from 2015 to 2024. These are counts, not rates: a larger city ranks higher partly because more people live and travel there.

AREAS OUTSIDE THE CITIES

FARS also counts deaths outside any city, and names some places that are not incorporated cities: Acton, Castaic, Chatsworth, East Los Angeles, Lake Los Angeles, Montrose, Wilmington. Some are unincorporated communities and some are neighborhoods of a city. We list them as FARS does and do not add them to any city.

PROVISIONAL COUNT FROM CHP

NHTSA has not published 2025 yet. CHP's own file gives an early count. It is a different source with its own rules, so it sits here on its own and is never added to or ranked with the FARS numbers.

For 2024, FARS counts 778 deaths in Los Angeles County. CHP's file counts 801 for the same year.

This count is not added to the FARS numbers above. CHP's file still changes as reports arrive, and NHTSA has not published 2025 yet. Motorcyclists, vehicle occupants and alcohol are not shown because CHP has not posted its 2025 parties file.

WHAT THE NUMBERS COUNT

- People who died within 30 days of a crash involving a motor vehicle on a public road in California: drivers, passengers, people walking, and people on bicycles and motorcycles.
- Each crash counts in the city and county where it happened, not where the person lived. A freeway crash inside a city's limits counts for that city.
- Alcohol-impaired is NHTSA's estimate of deaths in crashes where a driver's blood alcohol was 0.08 or higher. NHTSA fills in missing test results with a statistical method. It is not a police finding or a criminal charge.
- Hit-and-run counts every death in a crash where a driver left the scene.

Not counted:

- Deaths more than 30 days after the crash, crashes on private property such as parking lots and driveways, and injuries that were not fatal.
- Who caused a crash. A count says how many people died. It does not say who was at fault in any crash.

Small places have small numbers, and one crash can be most of a year. When fewer than 3 people died in a place in a year, the split by mode is not shown.

WHERE THE NUMBERS COME FROM

The counts are from NHTSA's Fatality Analysis Reporting System (FARS), the federal census of fatal crashes: the National CSV files for 2015 to 2024, downloaded from static.nhtsa.gov, with file dates from February 4, 2026 to June 24, 2026.

NHTSA's files through 2023 are final. The 2024 file is NHTSA's first release, and its numbers can change slightly when the final file comes out. Definitions follow NHTSA's FARS Analytical User's Manual, 1975 to 2024.

The provisional 2025 counts are from the California Highway Patrol's California Crash Reporting System (CCRS) on the state's open data portal, listed there as public domain, as of November 9, 2026. We counted each agency report once (2 filed twice), set aside 2 rows with a negative count, and withheld the places those rows belong to.

Which places are incorporated cities comes from the California Department of Technology's list of cities and towns, retrieved November 9, 2026. FARS records the City of Irvine's crashes under the place name East Irvine, which lies inside Irvine; we count them for Irvine.

As a cross-check, we compared these FARS totals with the SWITRS figures that UC Berkeley's Transportation Injury Mapping System (TIMS) shows for several cities and counties in 2023 and 2024. City totals differed by 7 deaths or fewer in each year, and county totals by 29 or fewer. We link TIMS and do not copy its data.

We built these tables on November 9, 2026 with a script that keeps California's rows and stores counts only: no names, addresses, dates or locations of any crash. This tool does not store or send what you pick.

You may quote these counts with credit to NHTSA FARS (and to CHP for a provisional year) and to this page.

ABOUT THIS REPORT

This is the first edition, published in November 2026. We update it once a year, after NHTSA's spring release, and the provisional column more often. To see any other California county or city, use Fatal crash facts by city, which reads the same files.

IF YOUR FAMILY LOST SOMEONE

Each number in this report is a person. If someone in your family died in a crash, the first 48 hours list covers what can wait, and the documents checklist lists the records a family can ask for.
